

Update information for ADNI

by

ADNI-China Association of Alzheimer's Disease

ADNI-China is working on the annual report now and will have all information by early May.

The full report may be presented in the AAIC meeting, and then will be submitted to ADNI.

Our major focus of 2017 is to build a solid foundation for the association. The really milestone work for us is that we finally got our government to approve the only AD journal in China.

Dr. Chuanhai Cao will explain it to you and answer any questions during the conference call and will submit a summary to ADNI-China.

We need your help and strong support. Please provide your comments and suggestions to us.

Introduction of The Chinese Journal of Alzheimer's Disease & Related Disorders

The Chinese Journal of Alzheimer's Disease & Related Disorders, the first journal dedicated to Alzheimer's disease and related neurodegenerative diseases in China, was founded by Chinese Association for Alzheimer's disease (CAAD)(CN 10-1536/R, ISSN 2096—5516) in early 2018.

This quarterly publication is a peer-reviewed professional academic journal in the field of Alzheimer's disease and related disorders which covers a broad spectrum of research, including basic science research, clinical studies, and drug discovery in translational medicine relating to the study of Alzheimer's disease and other neurodegenerative diseases. The Chinese Journal of Alzheimer's Disease & Related Disorders is establishing itself as one of the most influential and relied upon journals in the field of neurodegenerative diseases which serves as one of the premier intellectual forums in the national & international communities, including professional neuroscientists, clinical physicians and practitioners, drug developers, medical and health care workers, students, caregivers, and others in different institutions.

The aims of this journal are to publish new exciting research findings and clinical reports in the frontiers of research in Alzheimer's disease and related disorders, promote academic exchanges, advance transformation of achievements, popularize preventative and ameliorative interventions, and further promote development in the prevention and treatment of Alzheimer's disease and other neurodegenerative disorders.
