Paul Hagen, Rhinelander Walk to End Alzheimer's

Why I Volunteer

Rhinelander might not be the largest city in Wisconsin, but it has a lot of heart, according to Paul Hagen. Paul has been a volunteer for the Walk to End Alzheimer's® in Rhinelander for seven years. "We're a small community, but we're proud to have a dedicated committee and group of walkers who raised over $80,000 last year."

Paul has a personal connection to the cause, as he lost both his mother and mother-in-law to dementia, only a month apart. "I'm totally invested in the Walk," Paul shared. "It's a great group of the people on the committee and everyone is very committed."

In addition to being on the committee, Paul heads up a team, Bridger's Brigade. "Bridger is my one-year old grandson and I don't want him to ever have to go through what my mother went through. So, our fight went from my mother to the next generation."

Thank you, Paul, for your dedication to families in Rhinelander!
