Nursing Facilities with Dementia Units

Because the Chapter receives frequent requests for information about facilities with special care units for persons with Alzheimer's disease or other related dementias, we have compiled the following list. Please note that there is no definitive research to indicate that only facilities with specialized units provide quality care for persons affected by Alzheimer's disease. A program for dementia residents is only "special" if it offers something that is not offered in the traditional facility. You need to select a facility that you think will provide your loved one with the best possible care.

The Alzheimer's Association recommends that you visit a variety of facilities before the need for placement occurs. Long term care facilities often have waiting lists so planning ahead is advisable. As you visit, it is important to 1. Visit as many different facilities as you are able. 2. Visit at different times of the day and different days of the week. 3. Ask questions regarding resident care, including (a) Maintaining the highest level of functioning for the resident (b) Activities (c) staff/resident ratios (d) Alzheimer's education for the unit staff. 4. Talk with several staff members and families of other residents. (5) If the facility has a special care unit, find out the criteria used to determine the resident's placement in that unit and the criteria used to move a resident from that unit. If you have any questions or would like to work with one of the Family Assistance Coordinators, please call 937-291-3332 or 800-441-3322.
