Because the facts are...

- There are currently 25,800 Delaware residents living with Alzheimer's or related disorder.
- The "gray wave" is hitting Delaware as the leading edge of the baby boomers (born between 1946 and 1964) reached 65 in 2010.
- Currently, 1 out of 8 persons over 65 has Alzheimer's; 4 Sussex County residents will be over the age of 65 by 2030.
- The future workforce will be woefully inadequate in its capacity to meet the large demand for health services for older adults if current patterns of care and of the training of providers continue.
- The Alzheimer's Association is committed to providing top notch dementia education to improve the quality of life for persons with Alzheimer's and to satisfy new HB159 regulations in long term care training for Delaware health care professionals!
