In West Virginia, 8.3 percent of those aged 60 and over report that they are experiencing confusion or memory loss that is happening more often or is getting worse.

Nearly 80 percent of them have not talked to a health care professional about it.

For those with worsening memory problems, more than half say it has interfered with household activities and/or work or social activities – the highest among states reporting data.