HOSPICE CARE

Hospice care is end-of-life care provided by health professionals. They give medical, psychological and spiritual support. The goal of the care is to help people who are dying have peace, comfort and dignity. The caregivers try to control pain and other symptoms so a person can remain as alert and comfortable as possible. Hospice programs also provide services to support a patient's family. Hospice care can take place at home, a hospice center, a hospital or in a skilled nursing facility. Medicaid or Medicare will pay for part or all of hospice services. Drugs, supplies and equipment related to the person's "end stage" Alzheimer's disease may also be covered.

This list includes hospice services that care for persons with Alzheimer's. Inclusion on the list does not indicate a recommendation or endorsement. It is important you research the services to determine which best suit your needs. Also, call the counties surrounding where you live as many agencies will travel outside their county.
