

BECOME AN ALZHEIMER'S ADVOCATE!

The Alzheimer's Association is now recruiting volunteers from North Idaho & Eastern Washington to become Alzheimer's Advocates!

+++++
Caring for a person with Alzheimer's disease has been called "an act of love with monumental consequences." Family caregivers find themselves caught between emotional and financial ruin. It is with these caregivers in mind that advocates will communicate to public officials the special needs and concerns of Alzheimer patients and their families. An estimated 19,000 people in Idaho and an estimated 100,000 people in Washington are affected by Alzheimer's, now the 4th leading cause of death for adults.

Advocates can:

- Work with state and federal legislators and public officials to promote policies that support a range of accessible, quality services for people with Alzheimer's and their families
- Testify before legislative commissions and committees
- Meet with individual officials and legislators
- Represent the Association in coalition meetings in the community
- Be involved in letter writing campaigns
- Organize local activities highlighting specific problems
- Be involved in policy research activities

Some of our advocates can give only an hour a month: other much more. Schedules and activities for each advocate are developed on an individualized basis.
