Consultation Services

A significant consequence of the cognitive changes that occur in dementia is the impaired ability of individuals to perceive and make sense of the world around them. Therefore, structuring the world to support the person's remaining abilities can have a positive impact on the person's life.

The staff of the Learning Institute™ has a wealth of knowledge about dementia units, programs and services, and assessing environmental design. Consultation is also available for assessing functional areas – environmental services, dietary, nursing, social work, activities – resulting in an interdisciplinary approach that helps maximize the effectiveness of dementia units while promoting the highest level of quality care for those with dementia.

Consultation Services are $250/hour and written recommendations are provided.
