HOSPICE SERVICES

An interdisciplinary team which includes nurses, social workers home health aides, therapists, clergy, and volunteers which provides care to patients during their last days of life. Hospice offers a trained home-care team to assist the patient and the family in dealing with death as a natural process. Hospice usually provides follow-up visits and support groups during the bereavement period.

Hospice care providers often have in-hospital service as well as in-home service available. Contact the agency to determine with which hospital they are affiliated.
