“Fundraising is not all that we do, but all that we do depends on fundraising.”

In this newsletter, you will read about our determined efforts to reach all New Mexicans affected by Alzheimer’s with our care and support programs, no matter what obstacles must be overcome. But frankly, our efforts to end this disease go beyond our state-delivered programs. Here are just three examples of other things we do:

RESEARCH. The national Alzheimer's Association is the largest private, nonprofit funder of Alzheimer's disease research. Since awarding our first research grants in 1982, we have awarded over $405 million to more than 2,600 best-of-field grant proposals. We host the annual Alzheimer's Association International Conference (AAIC), the world's largest conference of its kind, bringing together researchers from around the world to report and discuss groundbreaking research and information.

PUBLIC POLICY. Conquering Alzheimer's disease is as much a matter of public policy as scientific discovery. The Alzheimer's Association actively advocates for the needs and rights of people facing Alzheimer's and their unpaid caregivers. Our advocates petition our lawmakers to make Alzheimer's a national priority. And we have successfully compelled Congress to take historic steps to address the Alzheimer's crisis — like the recent, Senate-proposed $414 million increase for Alzheimer's research that, if signed into law, brings federal funding to $1.8 billion.

AWARENESS. Through media, marketing and direct outreach, our concern and awareness efforts influence the national dialogue about the disease, combat stigmas, draw families toward the resources they need and create widespread awareness of this devastating disease. It wasn’t that long ago that you may have had to do some detective work to find any practical information or public conversation about Alzheimer’s disease. Today, it’s a much different story.

However in each of these examples, as well as our care and support services, more needs to be done. And none of it can happen without your help.

The Alzheimer’s Association is uniquely positioned to make a difference in the fight against Alzheimer’s disease. We were founded by the same people we serve - family caregivers and people whose lives were affected by this disease. And our organization continues to be driven by the efforts and passions of our constituents, who volunteer, participate and contribute financially to move our mission forward.

Every program and presentation you see in this newsletter, every support group listed on our website, every advocacy measure that strives to make the legislative landscape more sensitive to caregivers and their loved ones with dementia and every research grant we award that goes toward paving the way for a breakthrough – all have one thing in common. They all depend on you.

Alzheimer's is not going to go away by itself. Donate today and keep this fight alive.

To make your donation to the Alzheimer's Association, NM Chapter, call 1 (800) 272-3900. Thank you.
“All are welcome here.” That’s written on a sign in our main office lobby. It’s a simple statement, only four words. But it’s very meaningful to us.

Alzheimer’s disease doesn’t discriminate: and neither do we. At the Alzheimer’s Association, we believe that diversity is imperative, integral to our mission and vital to our vision of a world without Alzheimer’s disease. We seek to be inclusive of all people currently affected by Alzheimer’s disease, their caregivers and the communities in which they live.

The New Mexico Chapter of the Alzheimer’s Association is committed to reaching and engaging diverse communities. It would be impossible to extract this concept from our guiding principle of bringing free support, information and hope to all of the more than 106,000 unpaid caregivers and 38,000 New Mexicans who live with Alzheimer’s regardless of race, ethnicity, gender identity, age, socioeconomic status, sexual orientation, religion, language or disability.

We know that we cannot achieve our goals alone. We strive to cultivate relationships within diverse communities by sharing our time, talent, resources and by exchanging ideas with other people and organizations. On a national level, we have endeavored to form mutually beneficial, long-term national partnerships that increase our reach into key communities. Among those partnerships are:

NATIONAL HISPANIC COUNCIL ON AGING (NHCOA)
Recently, we embarked on a nationwide partnership with NHCOA aimed at increasing Alzheimer’s disease awareness and education in Hispanic communities across the country. The partnership will develop a network of health promoters to deliver Alzheimer’s education, while connecting people living with the disease and their caregivers to free resources and support services.

ALPHA KAPPA ALPHA, SORORITY INCORPORATED (AKA)
In 2013, Alpha Delta Kappa (AKA) made the Alzheimer’s Association one of its international altruistic projects. Since this partnership was established, its members have raised and donated more than $75,000 to the Association, designating The Longest Day as one of its International Days of Impact. AKA is the oldest African-American sorority, with 986 chapters and over 265,000 members, committed to service and improving the lives of African-Americans across the nation.

SERVICES AND ADVOCACY FOR GAY, LESBIAN, BISEXUAL AND TRANSGENDER ELDERS (SAGE)
Our partnership with SAGE began in 2014. SAGE is the country’s largest and oldest organization dedicated to improving the lives of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) older adults. SAGE and the Alzheimer’s Association are committed to a strategic and multipronged partnership approach that will provide opportunities to engage the LGBT community in the full mission of the Association.

As the American population ages and becomes increasingly more diverse, the Alzheimer’s Association will expand its mission to remain inclusive and accessible; and meet the demand for culturally and linguistically sensitive education, information, care and support.

So no matter who you are, or where you’re from, you are welcome here.

For an individual with Alzheimer’s, as well as their loving caregivers, every day is The Longest Day. The Alzheimer’s Association has created a do-it-yourself fundraiser that not only symbolizes the daily challenges of the disease, but also honors those we’ve lost or living with Alzheimer’s. The Longest Day is a personalized fundraiser that encourages you to do what you love in support of someone that you love - and allows you to get as creative as you desire.

From sunrise to sunset, The Longest Day is a fun way for you to help in the battle to end Alzheimer’s. The activity you choose is completely up to you, and that’s the best part! There are many ways to get involved whether you want to plan your own event or sign up as an individual. There is so much to choose from: some teams take part in trivia nights, show movies in the park or you could raise money by seeing how much watermelon participants can eat in 5 minutes. The choices are unlimited! With just a little creativity and support from your friends and family, raising funds will be easy and exciting.

Start by selecting an activity that you or a loved one enjoys. Then, pick a way to participate with a team or find a location to host an event. Do you love playing bridge? There’s a team for you! Maybe you want to throw a backyard carnival or your youth group thinks a car wash is a good idea; any idea can be a winner. When you join in The Longest Day, you are doing your part to fundraise and honor those affected by Alzheimer’s in any way, and on any day, that works with your specific schedule. Participating in this event is an amazing way to get involved with helping fight this disease that affects more than 38,000 people in New Mexico alone. By raising funds and awareness in your own community, you are helping us advance research and continue care and support for those with Alzheimer’s.

Being a part of The Longest Day ignites a conversation with those around you about this disease, the importance of promoting brain health and what we can all do to help find a cure. “Fundraising is key and it’s something anyone can do!” says Rebekah Maes, Community Engagement Coordinator, NM Chapter.

This last June, during Alzheimer’s and the Brain Awareness Month, the NM Chapter was able to shine a new light on this event like never before! With all the help from the staff and the support of so many teams and participants, the Chapter was able to grow their Longest Day fundraising by more than 500%! With help from communities around New Mexico, more than $36,000 was raised – funds that will go towards research for this ever growing and destructive disease. Teams here in New Mexico got very creative and put their best foot forward. We are so excited to see what this year brings!

It’s never too early to get started. So... what are you going to do?

For ideas on fundraising activities and info on getting involved with The Longest Day, contact: Rebekah Maes, Community Engagement Coordinator, NM Chapter (505) 266-4473 rmaes@alz.org. You can also visit: www.alz.org/tld
New Mexico’s cultural landscape is as rich and diverse as its wide-ranging geography. From arid mesas to majestic green peaks; from pueblos and planes to metro hubs... here are some of the ways the New Mexico Chapter covers this vast, spectacular state.

How does New Mexico’s terrain present challenges in delivering care & support?
The biggest challenge of delivering services to all of New Mexico is its unique geography. Our state, which is our service area, is massive. By contrast, our staff size is modest (about 17 employees). So we had to figure out a way to cover this wide and varying landscape, and the diversity of cultures and communities within it.

We looked at the state map, this large area peppered with small pockets of rural, metropolitan and tribal communities, sometimes hundreds of miles apart, and we literally divided it by five regions. Over time, we were able to establish regional offices in the larger hubs of each area: Farmington (Northwestern), Santa Fe (Northeastern), Las Cruces (Southwestern), Roswell (Southeastern) and the Greater Albuquerque area, where our main office was already located.

Essentially, these branch offices function like satellites, with the population in each designated area covered by a Regional Manager. These managers still log a lot of miles delivering programs in the surrounding communities, but the regional office serves as their main base of operations and venue for services and educational presentations.

Our volunteer instructors help us fill in the gaps (and we could not do any of this without our volunteers!). We train conscientious and capable community members to deliver programs in their own localities, which allows us to increase statewide coverage significantly. This is a hugely valuable system, especially when you consider how critical programs like The Savvy Caregiver can be to the unpaid family caregiver.

Another way we extend our reach is through Support Groups. Our chapter organizes over 50 groups statewide. Many are led by volunteer facilitators in communities outside the regional hubs (Moriarty, Carlsbad, Las Vegas, etc.). This is a great way for folks to meet regularly, receive helpful information and also establish their own support networks. Recently, we’ve taken access a step further by establishing a statewide call-in support group over the phone, for people who might have difficulty making it out of the house or driving to a nearby community.

What about the more remote or outlying rural communities?
New Mexico’s population is remarkably dispersed. We try and visit these smaller rural communities as often as possible, but we can’t do it all on the ground. The NM Chapter works with local radio, television and newspapers to promote services through advertising, community calendars, PSAs and local news coverage. This broad media outreach is designed to transcend geographic and socio-economic barriers, allowing us to deliver our message to diverse and often difficult-to-reach communities.
That same philosophy drives our online outreach. We have a healthy social media presence, and our chapter website gives constituents an up-to-date picture of statewide news, class schedules and event information. They can also follow the links to more comprehensive and instructional information on the disease and caregiving.

But even if you don’t have a computer, our 24/7 Helpline is available free of charge, to anyone at any time, regardless of location. You can call for general information, available resources in your area or just questions you may have. We encourage everyone to write it down and keep it handy: 1 (800) 272-3900.

We’ve also developed a relationship with the Good Neighbor Pharmacies to increase our rural outreach. The pharmacies are often located in smaller communities and offer us an opportunity to provide information and training presentations in their locations.

What are you doing to reach out to the Spanish-speaking / Bilingual communities?

One of our key programs is Cuidando con Respeto; a caregiver education workshop that provides the same helpful information as The Savvy Caregiver. But it’s more than just a Spanish-language Savvy; it is a complete cultural translation, with sensitivity to the values and customs of Spanish-speaking, monolingual or bilingual families. We’ve expanded this program to reach more communities with the help of our partners, NMSU Southern Area Health Education Center (SoAHEC) and Concilio Campesino del Sudoeste (Concilio CDS).

Our helpline provides services in over 200 different languages to accommodate a wide range of non-English speakers; the NM Chapter follows-up on these contacts with culturally relevant resources.

We think it’s important to have bilingual capabilities within our offices as well. We currently have three full-time staff members who are bilingual in Spanish. They happen to be myself (Gary Girón, Executive Director), Tina De La Luz (Program Director) and Lindsey Bachman (Southwestern Regional Manager, Las Cruces).

What are you doing to reach the Native American populations?

At least ten percent of our state’s population is comprised of Native Americans, many living in remote locations. What we have learned is that each community is different, and we have to make time to develop relationships with each one on a personal level.

We collaborate with the Indian Area Agency on Aging (IAAA) and National Indian Council on Aging (NICOA) in the promotion of a project called The Savvy Caregiver in Indian Country, which is designed for use by Native American people caring for an elder with dementia.

Additionally, our Regional Managers provide outreach to the Pueblos, Tribes and Nations across the state to offer services in their local communities such as care consultations, education, information and referral, and support groups.

We are currently exploring some new avenues of support and outreach to the Native American populations in the northwest region of the state. We have a new support group that meets in the Pueblo of Jemez. It is open to the public, and has been a positive development in providing care and support to that community. The attendance has been very encouraging.

We’ve made some great inroads, but there is still a lot of work to be done.

New Mexico’s per capita personal income ranks near the bottom in the United States. What are you doing to reach people living in poverty with limited financial resources?

At the heart of our Care & Support mission is unrestricted access to services. That’s precisely why the overwhelming majority of our services are provided free of charge. We believe the people of this state should have full access regardless of income or ability to pay.

Financial limitations were also taken into consideration when shaping our overall outreach to underrepresented populations in urban, rural and frontier areas. Telephone support, for instance - you can still receive a care consultation, get information and referral and now even attend a support group even if you cannot – for whatever reason - travel to our classes, offices or presentations.

The bulk of our programs, like The Savvy Caregiver are geared toward the “unpaid” family caregiver. We know the responsibility of becoming an in-home dementia caregiver often comes with financial hardship. Twenty-four-seven caregiving can’t help but collide directly with the 40-hour work week. So keeping our programs available for free makes it easier for caregivers to access, especially those feeling financial strain.

This guiding philosophy extends to our Family Caregiver Conferences, which are comprised of helpful presentations designed to educate and improve the experience of the family caregiver. We hold one in Albuquerque and one in Las Cruces each year, both free to family caregivers. To take that a step further, participants of both The Savvy Caregiver and the Family Caregiver Conferences may receive respite reimbursement for the cost of having others tend to their loved one while they attend.

This is probably a good time to mention The Respite Reimbursement Program. We provide a $350 per year respite reimbursement for in-home caregivers whose loved one has been diagnosed with Alzheimer’s or a related dementia. We can also provide a $1,000 once-in-a-lifetime emergency respite reimbursement. This is not an income-based program, however it does require a diagnosis of dementia and is subject to approval (call for info and criteria, 505-266-4473).

Alzheimer’s disease doesn’t observe boundaries. It doesn’t care where you live, how rich or poor you are or what language you speak. All across the state are cultural, language and socio-economic barriers to people receiving the services they need. But we know there are at least 106,000 unpaid family caregivers in New Mexico, caring for over 38,000 people with the disease. So the need is there - and we are committed to rising to the challenge of being there for anyone who needs us, in spite of any barriers.
