Alzheimer's Association Support Group Meetings

The Southeastern Wisconsin Chapter sponsors numerous support groups in our eleven-county region. They are open to all adults, FREE OF CHARGE. We urge you to attend regularly. You may benefit from attending more than 1 group per month. Although not required, we encourage new attendees to call the support group facilitator before attending to learn more about the group and to ensure the availability of the group.

Note: this listing is not to be used for any forms of solicitation.

What Happens In A Support Group?

(Something to Share with Newcomers and Friends)

Do I need it? Isn't it just one more thing to do?

In thinking about a Support Group, you may ask yourself those questions. Having never been to a group like that, you wonder what happens, what good will it do, will it just be a sharing of sadness? Can I talk to a stranger about my spouse, my life? These are fair questions to be asking.

Coping with the day-to-day problems and physical care of a person with Alzheimer's is both emotionally and physically draining. It is different from many other illnesses, and because the disease causes personality and behavioral changes in your loved one, you may find yourself feeling embarrassed, impatient, exhausted and even angry. We are left feeling that no one can understand what happens in our daily lives or the frustrations that we feel.

But something magical happens when people who share similar situations get together in a support group. Since everyone in the group has “been there” or “is there” now, there is a sense of trust. You can believe and learn from others. Maybe there is a creative way of handling a behavior that you had not thought of or a way to find humor in a most difficult day.

With other caregivers, it's easier to share your feelings. They share theirs and you find yours are not so different. In time, you hear yourself talking about what you “shouldn't” or “couldn't” with friends or even family. You may have a lot of mixed feelings, and it is hard to know what to do with them—sharing with our loved one is no longer possible. At support group meetings, heads nod with a lot of understanding as you speak. You can feel that magic sense of relief, the release of pent up tension that comes with knowing your problems or emotions are not so different and that you are not alone.

You can get just what you want. You can share as little or as much as you want to. If you only want solid information and how-tos, that is fine. You'll be part of a group where people can talk together, cry together and laugh together. You may find new friends, form special relationships or just find it helps you cope with day-to-day life.
