Adult Care Facilities

The New York State Department of Health licenses and supervises adult care facilities which provide temporary or long-term, non-medical residential care services to adults who are substantially unable to live independently. Resident dependence may be the result of physical or other limitations associated with age, physical or mental disabilities or other factors. Residents of adult homes, enriched housing, and assisted living programs are provided with personal care and services on a long-term basis. Most residents of adult care facilities are in need of supervision and personal care services necessary to enable the resident to maintain good personal health and hygiene, to carry out the basic activities of daily living, and to participate in the ongoing activities of the facility. Personal care includes direction and assistance with grooming (including care of hair and ordinary care of nails, teeth and mouth), dressing, bathing, walking and ordinary movement from bed to chair or wheelchair, eating, and assisting with self-administration of medications; however, residents of adult care facilities must not require the continual medical or nursing services provided in acute care hospitals, in-patient psychiatric facilities, skilled nursing homes or health related facilities, since adult care facilities are not licensed to provide any nursing or medical care.

SNALR – Special Needs Assisted Living Residence
Some Assisted Living Residences (ALR) may also be certified to serve people with special needs, such as Alzheimer's disease or other types of dementia. Special Needs Assisted Living Residences (SNALR) have submitted plans for specialized services, environmental features, and staffing levels that have been approved by the New York State Department of Health. The services offered by these homes are tailored to the unique needs of the people they serve. Sometimes people with dementia may not need the more specialized services required in a SNALR; however, if the degree of dementia requires that the person be in a secured environment, or services must be highly specialized to address their needs, they may need the services and environmental features only available in a SNALR. The individual's physician and ALR staff can help the person decide on the appropriate level of services. The SNALR is required to have a specialized plan in place to address the person's behavioral changes caused by dementia; however, if symptoms become unmanageable despite modifications to the care plan, the ALR's case manager is responsible to assist residents to find the right residential setting to safely meet their needs.

EALR – Enhanced Assisted Living Residence
Enhanced Assisted Living Residences (EALR) are certified to offer an enhanced level of care to serve people who wish to remain in the residence as they have age-related difficulties beyond what a basic Assisted Living Residence (ALR) can provide. To enter an EALR, a person can “age in place” in an ALR or enter directly from the community or another setting. If the goal is to “age in place,” it is important to ask how many beds are certified as enhanced and how your future needs will be met. People in EALRs may require assistance to get out of a chair, to walk or use stairs, to use medical equipment, or to manage chronic incontinence.

ALR – Assisted Living Residence
A basic Assisted Living Residence (ALR) takes care of residents who are medically stable. Residents need to have an annual physical exam and may need routine medical visits provided by medical personnel onsite or in the community. The ALR is designed to meet the individual’s social and residential needs, while also encouraging and assisting with activities of daily living (ADLs). An ALR may also be certified as an Enhanced Assisted Living Residence (EALR) and/or Special Needs Assisted Living Residence (SNALR) and may provide additional supportive services.

ALP - Assisted Living Program
An Assisted Living Program (ALP), which is available in some Adult Homes (AH) and Enriched Housing Programs (EHP), combines residential and home care services. It is designed as an alternative to nursing home placement for individuals who historically have been admitted to nursing facilities for reasons that are primarily social, rather than medical in nature. The operator of the ALP is responsible for providing arranging for resident services that must include room, board, housekeeping, supervision, personal care, case management and home health services.
AH – Adult Home
An Adult Home (AH) is established and operated for the purpose of providing long-term residential care, room, board, housekeeping, personal care and supervision to five or more adults unrelated to the operator. AHs may be operated by a natural person, a partnership, a not-for-profit corporation, a public corporation, a non-publicly traded business corporation or a limited liability company.

EHP - Enriched Housing Program
An Enriched Housing Program (EHP) is established and operated for the purpose of providing long-term residential care to five or more adults, primarily persons sixty-five years of age or older, in community-integrated settings resembling independent housing units. The program provides or arranges for the provision of room, board, housekeeping, personal care and supervision. EHPs may be operated by a natural person, a partnership, a not-for-profit corporation, a public corporation, a non-publicly traded business corporation or a limited liability company.

(New York State Department of Health, 2010-2013)

MEMORY CARE PROGRAMMING AND RESPITE CARE

Memory Care Programming - Special Needs Assisted Living Residences (SNALR) provide state-regulated memory care programming. Aside from state-regulated programs, facilities may also provide memory care services. Memory care programming services mentioned on this list are self-reported by each facility. Therefore, it is important to contact facilities to ask what their specific memory care programming entails.

Respite Care - Respite care services mentioned on this list are self-reported by each facility. It is recommended to contact facilities for further details about their respite care programs.

PAYMENT AND COVERAGE

An Individual’s Private Funds
Private funds are the most common payment method and are accepted in many adult care facilities. Charges vary across residences.

Long-Term Care Insurance
Most long-term care insurance policies include an assisted living benefit and many adult care facilities accept long-term care insurance. Policies vary in the amount of coverage and the conditions that the policyholder must meet in order to access the benefit. Individuals with long-term care insurance coverage are encouraged to review their policy for details. Long-term care insurance often will not cover services unless the facility is licensed.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI)
For those who qualify based on income and assets, Supplemental Security Income (SSI) will pay for base-rate Adult Home (AH) and Enriched Housing Program (EHP) services, as well as some Assisted Living Residences (ALR). This payment must cover the cost of living and comprehensive package of services offered. Not all AHs, EHPs, and ALRs will accept SSI as payment in full, as the monthly rate is insufficient to meet the costs of providing state-required housing and services. To be eligible for SSI, an individual must have income and/or assets that are not in excess of the amounts prescribed by government.

Medicaid
A limited number of residences are authorized to operate Assisted Living Programs (ALP), for which Medicaid funding is provided to residents who would otherwise be eligible for nursing home placement. Currently, Medicaid will not pay for residing in an Assisted Living Residence (ALR); although, it may pay for certain medical services received while in the ALR.
